Inmates who wish to be considered for the position of kitchen trustee must meet the criteria established by the Rio Arriba County Detention facility for appointment of an inmate to the trustee position. Careful screening of inmates to these positions is an important part of security. The Rio Arriba county Detention Facility requires that inmates working in the kitchen be free from contagious disease. A grace period of six days will be given to inmates awaiting the results for testing from a certified physician.

Procedure:

1. Upon receipt of an approved request for trustee status, an inmate will be screened for contagious diseases and be given a PPD in the left forearm.
2. If the results come out negative, the inmate will be allowed to work in the kitchen.
3. If the results are positive the inmate will be referred for further testing.
4. The inmate will not be allowed to work in the kitchen until cleared by a physician.
